If you need help formatting text, or switching between the text editor and the visual editor, scroll to the bottom of any editing page. There's a button to Preview and another to Save, and a link to Cancel the editing. There's also a button to switch editor style and a link that reads "help on how to format text." Click that link and a WikiText markup window pops up, so you needn't leave the editing page to check syntax.

"Sign" your contributions with WikiText markup. Use three tilde characters for a signature, and four tildes for a signature with date. The tilde looks like this: "~"

Here are some images that Brad uploaded.

To get the "new" image, enclose "image:NEW.GIF" in double square brackets.

To get the "updated" image, enclose "image:UPDATED2.GIF" in double square brackets.

Keep in mind that visitors to the site can always see what's new by clicking the "Recent Changes" link at the top of the navbar on the left. When you are on the "Recent Changes" page, switch between new edits and new comments to see everything.
